Forecast For Southwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Sunday 14 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Wet and windy for tonight, drier and milder for Monday.

This Evening and Tonight:
A heavy band of rain continues eastwards through the evening and overnight. This will slowly clear western areas during the early hours but remaining cloudy with fog patches possible. Windy with coastal gales for the south coast. Rather mild. Minimum temperature 9 deg C (48 deg F).

Monday:
Lingering fog clearing for a dry morning with plenty of sunshine. Cloudy during the afternoon with outbreaks of rain arriving later, persisting overnight. Winds strengthening again but feeling very mild. Maximum temperature 13 deg C (55 deg F).

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Cloudy with blustery showers for Tuesday morning, drier with clear spells later. Cloudy with scattered showers for Wednesday and further rain overnight into Thursday morning before becoming drier. Windy throughout.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.